Senator Farris' Rabbit Law. The cill introduced by Senator Geo. Farris to prevent the killing of rabbits during certain months is likely to be considered out of place at first thought, but the object of it is good. All farmers know that during the time the quail are protected, a number of hunters go out and say they are killing rabbits, when their real object is to shoot quail. Now, by prohibiting the killing of rabbits, there will be no excuse for the hunters to offer, consequently it will work to a great advantage in protecting the Harris' store preparing to advertise birds.
